Facing The Facts and Cutting the CUP

by Janice Savage

Editor-in-Chief

As the bills for the Christmas gifts, bought on credit and not yet paid for, roll in, a good many of us are having to face some difficult financial realities. The cost of living is going up, the cost of education is certainly not getting any easier to swallow, and the cost of running a business means more and more companies are having to streamline or shut down.

Lambda Publications is a member of Canadian University Press (CUP). It is a national organization comprised of fifty some newspapers, four regional offices, a national office and an advertising co-op that represents the newspapers to potential national advertisers. From CUP we receive a weekly news exchange consisting of the top stories across Canada, the right to reprint anything printed in another CUP paper, and a support network that organizes two regional and one national conference every year, offers us legal advice and puts us in touch with the right people during rough times.

Enter the aforementioned financial realities. This year, Lambda had to cut six issues resulting in a lower income for the staff and less information for the students.

A lot of the fringe benefits that previously came with being a staff member (e.g. free pizza every Tuesday, and access to a fax machine gratis) no longer exist.

To add insult to injury, we have been plagued by out dated office equipment that has slowed us down, and is costing us money to replace. (Did you know that nobody makes parts for Mac Classics anymore?) You may also remember that Lambda was denied the opportunity to gain a levy increase last year by the SGA. And on goes the horrific tale of woe.

So, Lambda, like many other small businesses, has been forced to streamline. The first thing the staff agreed to consider was our membership in Canadian University Press. This year, Lambda paid a little over four thousand dollars in delegate, travel pool and membership fees for CUP. There are lots of reasons for remaining in the organization, (we've been members since the early 70's) but there are lots of reasons why we should walk away, (they range from the financial to the ideological.). The staff has agreed to vote on our membership status on January 14th at a general meeting at 1:30 p.m. in room L221.

Lambda is your newspaper. About half of our money comes from the students, so the students should have a say as to how we spend that money. If you have any thoughts on the proposed withdrawal from CUP I invite you to come and discuss them with us at any time during the next little while; truly, it is a big step for any publication. Removing Lambda from CUP is a full year process.

Gekko Wrong About Violence

by David Brons

Gordon Gekko's December 2 column makes for truly fascinating reading. He conveniently side-steps the issue of violence against women. (I thought he liked statistics). Instead he chooses to attack feminists. In his views they are "embittered man-hating militants" obsessed with "perceived slights". Laughably, he even claims they are conspiring to "degender" men, and keep them around just for reproductive purposes. The editor of Lambda would have us believe this stuff qualifies as news.

The facts speak for themselves. violence against women is not a "perceived slight", it is all too real. According to the latest statistics, 51% of women in Canada have experienced some form of violence at the hands of men. This has to change. Wearing a white ribbon is not enough.

P.S. Mike Hollingsworth's assertion that by writing letters to the editor, I am somehow restricting Gekko's right to free speech, is absurd.

Eco Talk

by Recycling Coordinator

Laurentian University is in tune with the 90's by becoming more environmentally conscious, so be sure you participate by recycling this newspaper. The campus now recycles 10% of the waste we generate, based on the current weight being disposed at the regional landfill site. (Laurentian disposed of over 400 metric tonnes last year.)

A video about the recycling program for staff and students is now currently under production. The video will emphasize that recycling is a feasible alternative to the growing waste problem, but that the long term solution lies in "REDUCING" the waste that we generate. A waste audit of the campus is also in the beginning stages.

Challenging the waste crisis will involve innovative thinking, and usually a little extra effort. Some easy ways to reduce waste on campus is to reuse to use disposable styrofoams or paper containers for coffee and food consumed in the cafeteria. Use glassware and carry your own "Lug-a-mug" for coffee, soup or chile. These mugs are available at Tim Hortons, or the Bookstore. Buy your pop in recyclable cans (and deposit them in the bins provided). If you live in residence buy pop and other products in recyclable PET Plastic containers. More companies are changing to PET Plastic. What is PET Plastic? Find out next week, at ECO TALK. Be there!

Married White Male Scared

Personally, I consider Lambda a worthless rag that I have been forced to purchase during the past four years. I find the fact that I am forced to pay for it extremely infuriating due to the fact that most of the opinions and stories it publishes contradict my own personal values. I find articles such as "The Gay Man's Guide To More Erotic Safe Sex", and "The Heterosexual Questionnaire", as well as depicting Bart Simpson as a Queer (ie. Bart with an earring and shirt with 'queer nation' on it), extremely irritating and biased against normal males.

For the most part, the various Lambda staff members during the past four years seem to be immature, artsy-liberal, anti-white-straight-male, pro-shake-your-privates-in-everyone's-face, politically correct villains who would not stand a chance at a real newspaper. If Lambda was a paper worthy of reading they would not need to pirate funds from students during our annual tuition payments but rather could distribute it much like every other paper at a fee. I would like to see how many people would actually buy your crap if they weren't forced (try to tell admissions that you don't want to support Lambda or CFLR and save your $20.00... impossible). As you can well imagine, I am a supporter of Gord Gekko although I feel he has watered down much of what he writes in order to appease the rest of the sappy Lambda staff.

In response to the letters against Gord Gekko, I am a little confused about Mike Hollingsworth's opinion. I think he was in support of Mr. Gekko, but if so, he did a piss-poor job of expressing it. As to Miss Jennifer Valiquette, you are extremely misguided in your opinion. You state that scientific and medical communities agree that homosexuality is normal. How is it then that in 1992, Richard A. Isay, the head of the gay and lesbian caucus of the American Psychiatric Newsletter, stated that "a majority of psychiatrists still consider homosexuality a pathology". If homosexuality is something you are born with, then why are there bisexuals, pedophiles, S&M freaks, bestiality, and the list goes on. Are we to expect that these people were born with these traits in their genetic code or were they taught it or did they develop it?

People like you, Miss Jennifer Valiquette, scare me. I am a 25-year old, married white male enrolled in the Engineering program. I have a six-month old daughter and although my opinions are already formed, it scares me that people like you could possibly influence her with your distorted and uninformed ideas. I am particularly worried that such a small minority of our society (homosexuals claim 10%, statistics claim 1-3%) has succeeded in controlling our media, politicians and weak-minded individuals such as yourself.

Male Student Offered Option of Dropping Out of

by Andy McKillican

News Editor

Students in Dr. Elizabeth Rucki's Introduction to Women's Studies class were surprised to learn during one of their classes that the lone male student registered in the course was asked to leave by Thorneloe administration.

Actually, he was given two options; take another class, which didn't fit his schedule or take a correspondence course. Sources say that there has been a lot of tension in the class of late because of differences in views on sensitive issues. Dr. Don Thompson, President and Provost of Thorneloe, suggested in an interview that "different interests" are being represented in the class. There are students who are studying Women's Studies as well as "others not committed to the field." In the class "disruptive questions come from differing groups."

Dr. Thompson's concern is that the class get past the tensions and get on with the learning of Women's Studies. He said the class "developed a code of behaviour to keep class discussion together" when the administrators visited the class to address the tension.

One student said, "After the first time the administrators came into the class, things were going really smoothly. We didn't see why any measures like that had to be taken. They (the administrators) say it's not the only problem in the class. But they see it as the easiest way to better the situation."

Dr. Thompson stated that the student's being asked to leave "had to do with the way he conducted his own questions and challenges in the classroom." The female student said "I disagree with some of the things he says. But, whether it's offensive or not I think he should be allowed to speak his mind in class."

To the question of whether the male student was being silenced

Dr. Thompson replied, "Not at all. Discussion should be able to go on without any threat or challenge to anybody's person. It's an incorrect impression that the male student was asked to leave. He's not required to leave. On the other hand I think tensions have to be resolved."

The female student in the class stated, "The administration say he's not being asked to leave because he's a man. But, he's the only man in the class and he's the only one the Prof has a problem with. That's a little fishy."

Dr. Thompson suggested that when the relationship between men and women comes up in class it can be very emotional. One man cannot represent the opinions of all men but there is a "tendency to give that one man more emphasis."

"One of the first situations that happens in conflict is the first stage where issues are in dispute. This can progress to the next stage where person's are in dispute. Thorneloe is hoping to get to a point where we get back to stage one or are perhaps not in conflict at all."

Dr. Thompson said in an attempt to relieve some of the tension in the class Dr. Rucki would be taking a few weeks off while another Professor taught the class. "Dr. Rucki remains the instructor of the course and will be marking the assignments and tests," he said.

The Career Directory : A Guide to the Hidden Job Market

by Janice Savage
staff writer

As the summer quickly approaches students thoughts have turned to finding employment. Not only are students faced with the challenge of finding new and strategic methods of finding a summer job, but those lucky enough to be graduating have the even bigger problem of trying to get a career under way.

Among the publications now available to guide students during their quest is The Career Directory published by the Edcore Publishing Corporation in Toronto. This book claims to be "The Canadian guide to the hidden job market" and, in fact, does a relatively decent job of culminating a lot of very important information.

To briefly describe the format of the book, it begins with an education section that lists a variety of degrees and, underneath each, the companies that hire people with these qualifications. Then, a handy dandy page number tells you where to look for more information in a section that details the company, necessary qualifications for employment, starting salary, and names of people to make contact with. In addition, and this could be important, they tell you if they hire summer employees.

The Career Directory is a useful tool in today's quest for employment. Available in the "Career" section of most bookstores, it is a worthwhile investment to anyone who is serious about breaking into the competitive world of post-graduate employment.

Laurentian Community Provided Christmas for Less Fortunate

Imagine yourself five years old again, you tiptoe down to the tree early Christmas morning, hoping with all your heart that Santa might have brought you the choo choo train you've been begging for. You arrive at the tree and your heart sinks when you realize that not only is there no choo choo train, but there aren't any gifts under the tree at all. Can you imagine a Christmas like that?

For many families in Sudbury, this is a reality. But thanks to the compassionate hearts of the students and staff of Laurentian University, ninety children of the Sudbury Area were blessed with gifts this Christmas. It all started with the Angel Tree organized by Laurentian student Stephanie Lemieux; where students picked up the first name and age of a needy child. They then proceeded to buy a gift for this child and place it under the Angel Tree. Money was raised by S.S.R. residence and a large donation was obtained at a luncheon for Laurentian University employees through the aid of Gisele Pageau, LUSA President, as well as Dr. Ross Paul, President of Laurentian. Gifts were then bought with the money donations by Paulette Lafortune, S.S.R. residence manager, and wrapped the day before Christmas with the help of Armand Martin. It just goes to show that even in hard times Laurentian University has heart.

Metamorphoses

Political correctness. You know, in some ways, I think it's a plague. Maybe it has something to do with the fact that I'm the most politically incorrect I know. There was an incident last semester — I was so mortified, all I could do was stare like an idiot—I was running for the elevator with an armload of stuff. I shouted out "hold the door!" à la Buckwheat, and when I got to the door, there patiently holding the elevator open was a person of colour. His family was there too. At no other time in my life was I more ashamed of myself. I have since stricken the offending phrase from my vocabulary, but the incident arose because of a slip of the brain caught my tongue off guard (she says trying to defend herself). There is no excuse for such behaviour in today's sensitive society though. I have been accused of using sexually exclusive language in my essays, and even my professors—culturally sensitive people, I must say—have been attacked for honest misconceptions. So what do you do?

One thing you can do, and many sensitivity groups will applaud you for it, is to sensor yourself paranoiacly. I'm sorry if that sounded bitter, being responsible for your behaviour is a good policy at all times, but what about honest mistakes and lack of knowledge? I think the best way to handle a possibly offensive situation is to assume that the person who has just offended you must be aware of the new politically correct rules that now govern interpersonal conduct. With all the press about PC behaviour lately, the individual would have to live in a vacuum not to have some knowledge of the matter. After that assumption has been made, there are only two conclusions you can come to; the first conclusion you can arrive at is that the offensive statement was purposely meant to insult you and the second is that the person made an honest, or an innocent mistake. Of the two possibilities, the latter inevitably gets you in incorrect alienation and keep more friends. Ask the person kindly, for example, "Did you realize that what you just said is offensive to me?" You'll get one of two replies; one, "Oh my God, I'm sorry! I didn't think, thanks for making me aware of my mistake" (and, get this, you've just demonstrated your sensitivity in not offending them...) and two, "Yeah so why do you think I called you a - in the first place, you -!!" In the second instance, you are perfectly justified if you verbally attack them. Notice I said verbally.

Race relations week got stuffed into a very busy school week last semester. Let's make sure that we don't forget the lessons we've learned about cultural and gender diversity. None of us is perfect, but we're here at university because we want to learn. Never stop learning.

One of the best learning experiences you can have is to get out to the events taking place during International Week. There are only a few days left so get out there and get culturally diversified! Unsafe Conditions

by Shaun Joseph contributor

There are things amiss at the swimming pool. What you ask? Well, very simply that it seems as though the experience there is lacking. Lifeguards are trained monthly, unfortunately these lifeguards are inexperienced.

Many experienced lifeguards applied in september 1993 for positions as lifeguards and got turned down, even though these same people had been lifeguards for several years at other facilities.

What is the criteria for becoming a lifeguard at the swimming pool? It seems that high school students have a better chance to get a job then veteran lifeguards. This could be a very dangerous thing to do because in case of a major accident these less experienced lifeguards may not have the skills to handle the situation.

I am not trying to put these lifeguards down, do not misinterpret my meaning. I am concerned with the quality and level of the pool staff.

Out and About: Nineteen Ninety Three

Anonymous

Nineteen ninety-three was the year in which gays were the in thing! To be hip you had to like gays, they were everywhere. We were in the movies as cross-dressers and transsexuals as in the movies such as the Crying Game, Mrs. Doubtfire and M. Butterfly. Gays were popular in movies such as And the Band Played On, a HBO special and recently the movie Philadelphia. Also TV presented recurring characters such as a gay in Melrose Place and a lesbian on Roseanne.

Our presence and issues flooded the media, Barbara Streisand against Colorado, Marky Mark against homophobia and almost everyone at the exception of Rush Limbaugh and his clones or clowns(?), were for increased AIDS awareness.

In politics, our presence was unpalatable for many Canadians and Americans with the lifting of the ban on gays-in-the-military, the march on Washington and the gay positive curriculum in school across our country. This was the year we all had an opinion on gays and their participation in society, no longer as sex crazed, sick, perverted animals but as human beings that had the right to be an equal member of this society. It was a great exercise in humanity and inhumanity. It strengthened the gay communities around the world, we made many allies. Nineteen ninety-three was the year we saw man's inhumanity to others, purely because of people's sexual orientation. It tested the finest of humanity!

Music was also another avenue that was available to us. RuPaul carved out a way for gays and drag queens that no one could have ever done. Maybe that was the year of "outing" such as K.D. Lang, Janis Ian, Melissa Ethridge and Boy George and many more, maybe even your closest friends, a brother, a sister or a parent.

Maybe one day, hopefully-real soon- shall (as I was reading the OUT magazine of december 1993) "perhaps, we'll get the pat on the back without the accompanying twist of the knife. Nineteen ninety-four anyone???" YES please.

Gordon Gekko
Columnist

If this column had a sub-title, it would be called "Why the Left Won't Win in Ontario". To illustrate this, I'm going to use a story that I read a long time ago in some newspaper, the name of which escapes me. While the premise and the story itself might seem silly, the lesson is very real. It is the story of what is going on in Ontario.

One day, Greta the hen was scratching around in the dirt. Oh happy day! Greta had found some wheat that had fallen out of Farmer Brown's truck. It had been a rough summer, and there had been little food for the animals. The hen called out to the other animals; Pat the feminist goat, Bob the exploited working class cow and Quincy the well-meaning socially concerned chicken. "Look what I found!", shouted the hen, "Will somebody help me get rid of the chaff in this wheat?"

"How dare you try and make me physically subservient!", said the feminist goat.

"How dare you try and exploit the working class, you bourgeoisie pawn!", said Bob.

"I don't think that really helps society. I mean, like it doesn't do anything for us", stated Quincy. So the hen removed the chaff herself. She then asked the animals to help her grind the wheat into flour.

"Sorry, women have been working too long for no pay", said Pat.

"Pig! How dare you ask me to work longer hours!" shouted the cow.

"Hmm, I don't think so. I have weighty social problems to think about" murmured the chicken.

So Greta ground the wheat into flour herself. Now she wanted to bake some bread. Surprisingly, she again went to ask the animals for some help.

"Men's pawn! How can you ask me to make food?" screamed Pat.

"Bread! How can you think of bread while our poor brothers and sisters the cows must give up their milk and meat every day? Pawn! Wretch!" shouted the cow.

"Hey man, why not just sit down and smoke some real cool weed with me?" asked the chicken.

So Greta baked the bread herself. Finally she was done. The bread smelled marvelous. All the animals crowded around and started begging for some food.

"No!" shouted Greta, "All of you kept whining and bitching. You want me to give you bread after you refused to help me make it. I asked all of you politely and all I got was nothing. I'm eating this bread myself."

But before she could, an Ontario tax collector grabbed most of the bread and distributed it to the other animals. "Sorry, but you can't expect to keep the fruits of your own labor", piously stated the black shirted government official. Greta realized her error and never worked a day in her life again.

Apart from being a cheap attempt of Animal Farm, the story does have a point. The current NDP government does not want those who work hard to be rewarded for the work. They want income re-distribution. Take money away from the rich and give it to the poor. What they don't realize is that the rich generally got that way by hard work. They take away the desire to be successful from the rich, and they give everything to the poor not realizing that they take away the desire to work hard. They create class envy to gain support from the working class. They create an atmosphere of crisis which gives them the support they do not deserve.

What can you do? Vote against the NDP government and those who would tax away the wealth that is the engine of job creation in this province and country. Remember, the rich didn't steal money away from you my friends, they worked hard for it. Work hard, play clean and you can be rich too. This is Canada after all...

Demand Up For Peer Tutoring

The Peer Tutoring Program which is provided by the Counseling and Resource Centre experienced an increased demand for tutors during the Fall term of 1993. This is good news.

The increased utilization of tutors does mean, however, that the program is operating near the upper limits of its budget allocation. The not so good news is that the rule of 10 hours of tutoring per course, per term, per student will be more strictly enforced from here on. This will allow the program to continue providing the tutoring services that the students are requesting and using. During the Fall term 291 students applied for tutoring. Of these, 163 were matched with qualified peer tutors. The estimated average hours of contact with a tutor was 7 hours per student.

A new service, in the form of walk-in "Math Clinic", will be provided during the winter term in 1994.

Theatre Cambrian Showcases Local Talents

by Susan Lampinen

Theatre Cambrian is an organization unique to Sudbury in that it not only places the emphasis on people, but more specifically showcases the talents of local writers, set designers, directors and performers. Members who admit to getting involved for the sheer love of all aspects of the performing arts, follow Theatre Cambrian's mandate to enrich the aesthetic favour of Sudbury.

Founded in 1985, by Cambrian College theatre professor Jamie J. Bourget, Theatre Cambrian has since attracted a star-studded crew. The artistic director is joined by president Dale Pepin, a teacher at Macleod

Public School who first became involved after performing in the group's hit production of Jesus Christ Superstar, Denise Vitali, the choreographer and well-known owner of the Sudbury School of Dance; Robert Joy, the production coordinator who spent a number of years at the Sudbury Theatre Centre and who was nominated for a Dora Award (The Canadian equivalent to the Tony's) and Casey Evans, a registered nurse who works with Sudbury Music Theatre as a vocal director.

Musical Soap Op-era.

The play, which runs Feb. 14 to March 5, features music by such 60's sensations as The Beatles, Burt Bacharach, Elvis, James Brown and Nancy Sinatra. Membership privileges, which cost $5, include a subscription to Theatre Cambrian's own newsletter.

Theatre Cambrian kicked off its 9th season in November with their performance of The Man Who Never Died. Upcoming productions include Evita, which runs May 17 to June 4, and Suds: The Rocking 60's

TWENTIETH CENTURY FOX ON POLITICAL CORRECTNESS

Political correctness is a hot-button issue on today's college campuses. Where before students of all sexes, races and mind-sets used to band together to protest the establishment, today they are protesting each other. Oppose the wrong cause, belittle the wrong issue, and you can find yourself at war with people who deem all too eager to stifle the free-thinking that was once encouraged as a part of university life.

"PCU", the new comedy from Paul Schiff, the producer of "My Cousin Vinny", explores political correctness from a rather raucous perspective. Set on the austere campus of Port Chester University, "PCU" centers around The Pit, a renegade frat house whose members are determined to shake up the rigid and oh-so-correct behaviour of their fellow classmates. Butting heads with humorless special interest groups and an administration desperate to avoid controversy, the defiant residents of the Pit risk life and limb to restore the air of debauchery and crude behaviour which are the right of every university student.

Featuring a cast of young newcomers that includes Jeremy Piven ("The Larry Sanders Show"), David Spade ("Saturday Night Live"), Chris Young ("Warlock: The Armageddon"), Sarah Trigger ("Grand Canyon"), and Megan Ward ("Encino Man") and directed by actor Hart Bochner (War and Remembrance), "PCU" gives a comic slant to an issue which only promises to grow topicality.

Quotation Marks

by db

"I love you"
They never tell you that it's in quotation marks.

If you get fooled for just one night, then those words soil your soul for a long time. You'll think you're just cheap and dirty — as though you've caught yourself masturbating over this old lingerie catalogues again.

You know you're not supposed to succumb. Everyone knows. Not even to romance novels, soft-porn flicks on late night TV, lot-talk calls, fantasies or dreams. But you do. And when you fall for those three words for one night, you are masturbating, with someone else's flesh as a toy. It's probably disappointing then.

But if it was only a night, then at least it's behind you. Remain under the spell of those words for a few months and forget your loneliness. Forget your friends, forget your work, forget your leisure time, forget your dreams for someone else. Make then the star of you life's film. Watch their image fading on the screen. Just another cameo. Fooled again by that highly unpredictable director.

Struggle daily with the urge to call them, just for the chance to talk again, like you did when it was so good. Wonder why you struggle, what is it that you fear. Don't call.

It's hard to regenerate those parts that were torn away with your past "loves". All too often scar tissue forms, numbing future sensation. The pitiful depths and the pleasurable peaks are leveled, in the interest of self-protection. You find safety in the flat line. Flirt for a few minutes, or a few days — then, flat-lined, move on, leaving other heart victims behind you.

Grumpy Old Men

starring Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau and Ann-Margret

Filmed on location in Minnesota, "Grumpy Old Men" examines the decades - old love-hate relationship between two neighbours (Lemmon and Matthau), and the way their lives are thrown into total upheaval when a lovely, free-spirited widow (Ann-Margret) moves in across the street from them.

In Minnesota, it is said that there are three seasons: June, July and Winter. And for John Gustafson (Lemmon) and Max Goldman (Matthau), next-door neighbours in the picture-perfect town of Wabasha, it has been one long winter of their discontent with each other...56 years to be exact! Their greatest pleasures are thinking up new ways to embarrass and ambush each other in the course of their everyday campaign of revenge and retribution. About what? Who knows? Max and John might recall the shadowy beginning of this lifetime love-hate relationship, but they're not telling. They greet each other every morning, it's true — but their greeting usually consists of profanity mixed with insulting one-upmanship, for instance "Do us a favour and pull your bottom lip over your head then swallow".

Their greatest pleasure, that is, radiant, free-spirited and enchantingly eccentric college teacher Ariel Truax (Ann-Margret) moves in right across the street from them. She gives both grumpy old men new leases on life, as she innocently escalates their mutual loathing to new heights, with each furiously jockeying for first position in her affections.

This film is a must-see, as we will all be able to relate to it as most of the film takes place during the bitter cold of winter! It truly is hilarious, guaranteed to leave you with sore sides and wet pants!

MUSIC MUSIC MUSIC

Dig-ing a Hole

by Steve Martynovich
Staff Writer

They've been described as "California stoners on axe overload" and "loud, bold and bombastic". Dig lives up to these labels with their self-titled debut album which comes after tremendous success with their EP "Runt", which was released in January of 1993. The four song EP charted in the Top 40 of 222 college stations all over the United States.

They combine aspects of grunge, punk and metal sound which comes together fairly well. Although the band lists their musical influences as punk rock, freedom rock and Pink Floyd, Dig reminds me a little like Alice in Chains, which isn't surprising considering that the album was produced by Dave Jerden, who has previously worked with Alice in Chains, Jane's Addiction, and Anthrax.

Most of the songs basically pair the natural combination of heavy guitar and enough references to drugs to fill the average late 1960's/early 1970's album. "I'll Stay High", "Conversation" (a wicked slash on meaningless talk), and "Fuck You" are the best tracks off Dig, but I don't think they are vigorous enough to lift the rest of this effort up. It was hard to get into this one, due to the fact that most of the offerings are missing something, like a point. I'd skip this one.

ERIC'S TRIP

Love Tara, perhaps not so lovely!

by Lisa Urso
Staff Writer

Eric's trip sounded like a bunch of kids messing around with distortion pedals in a garage. Apparently, though, the powers that be at Sub-Pop see something more to them, as they are the first Canadian band to be signed to the label that arguably kick-started the "grunge" craze.

Guitarist / sometimes vocalist Rick White describes Love Tara as "sappy, melodic pop-music on top of thick distortion." The description fits!

Sappy? You bet. White's breathy "I'm trying to be intense yet sensitive" voice on slow songs such as "Behind the Garage" and "Allergic to Love" simply make me cringe.

Melodic...O.K, but I'm more partial to tunes like "Anytime You Want" and "Follow" when the tempo picks up and the guitars and drums get louder. Speed and volume have the amazing ability to camouflage the imperfections found mainly in the vocals department. No, Love Tara isn't a flawless album, so those who demand perfection might not appreciate it!

The Bricklayer (CUP)

With society the way it is today, love, dating and sex are becoming more and more confusing. It's hard to know what is taboo and what isn't, or even now what you can do without severely hurting yourself mentally and physically. Most of us learn these things the hard way, through personal experience, and we end up getting hurt before we realize that we should not be doing whatever we were doing to begin with.

Take all of what I am about to say to heart. True there are exceptions to every rule, everywhere, but most of the time you are not one of them. Keep these tips in your subconscious and realize that your love life will be a lot less confusing if you do. I know they work, simply because I learnt the hard way.

Tip #1:

NEVER (and when I say never, I do mean NEVER!) go home with someone you meet in the bar. PERIOD! The bar is not the ideal place to meet your future life long companion. The smoke, booze, loud music, flashing lights and hot moving bodies are the perfect things to distort your perception of reality and place you under the influence. When you are under the influence you will take anything that remotely resembles Mr. or Mrs. Right, even if you know you can do much better. You'll wake up in the morning beside the frog when you are positive that you went to bed with Prince (or Princess)

Charming.

Tip #2:

Don't do something that you may regret when you know that you won't remember the details all that clearly. You will probably end up filling the gaps in with worst case scenarios and scaring yourself shitless. Or you will have friends trying to do it for you and make you prematurely age. With friends like that who needs enemies?

Tip #3:

Keep one night stands, one night stands, unless the sex is so incredible it keeps you coming back for more. If you get emotionally involved with someone who you only want for physically satisfaction, you'll only hurt yourself in the long run. And that is something that you don't want to do to yourself. There is nothing wrong with sex for sex sake.

Tip #4:

If you are feeling desperate for anything that resembles human companionship but you don't want to do anything stupid when you go out, go out with a group of friends that you trust and make them stop you from doing anything stupid. Table dancing doesn't count. Tip #4.5-Ladies, take a male friend with you when you want to go out. They act as a really nice barrier between you and any sleazy guys that may try and put the make on you. And if that male friend happens to be gay, you don't have to worry about them trying to put the make on you either, and you can relax.

Tip #5:

Don't sleep with someone on the first meeting or date, because unless there is a definite chemistry that is not sexual (and things like that do exist) between you and your partner, all your relationship will be is just sex. That may not be bad, but it may also make you feel trapped in a relationship that is not satisfying you in every way, and you will probably have to go outside to find what you need, and this can lead to feelings of resentment, and jealousy on your partners side and that leads to other problems that are to involved for a

Tip #6:

Monogamy is important in any relationship, but if you can't possibly be faithful to one person, keep your affairs discreet. The rest of the population doesn't need to know. If your partner does find out, and they want to murder you, you are on your own.

Tip #7:

Don't date or sleep with friends of your siblings or parents, simply because it makes for very messy family relations. Your family members may be upset if you date their friends, and they may even go as far as to tell you to break off the relationship. A decision that only the people in the relationship should make. And if the relationship does not work, it will ruin the friendship you have with that person, and the friendship with that person has with your family members. They may stop visiting just in order to avoid you and your family will blame you for everything that happened and try and make you feel guilty. You don't need to put up with stuff like that.

Tip #8:

Be leery of anyone who says "trust me". Trust is something that has to be earned, so don't give yours away freely to people who don't deserve it. A person who says trust me, probably isn't worth trusting with anything, let alone your emotions. This policy also works well in areas outside the world of love. Have you ever been able to trust a politician who says "Trust me"?

Tip #9:

If you hear any bad stories about a person who you are involved with, give them the benefit of the doubt until you ask them. Don't crucify somebody, simply because you heard something bad that may or may not be true. Remember innocent until proven guilty. But if that person is guilty of whatever they were said to have done, use your own judgment about what to do next. Don't be swayed by peer pressure or seduction. It's your life and you are the one in charge.

Tip #10:

If it feels wrong, then it probably is wrong. When it comes to intimate relations it is sometimes better to follow your instincts than try and rationalize through it. It is not good to stay in a bad relationship (abusive, boring) when you know you should get out, because it will drain you, or make you believe that you are doomed to a lifetime of bad relationships. As far as an abusive relationship goes, get out before you are really hurt (be it physical or mental) permanently. I don't want to sound preachy but you can do better.

Tip #11:

Don't say the "f" sentence after a break up. The "f" sentence is "We can still be friends". This statement makes males cringe and gives females the idea that the relationship still might work (or vice versa). If your relationship ended in a mutual decision (e.g. going away to school...) it is possible that a friendship might work, but if the decision wasn't mutual the friendship will not work. You will spend your time blaming the other for the end or wishing they would fall off the face of the planet, and this will make it hard for you to be civil, let alone be friends.

Tip #12:

Don't date or sleep with people who you consider friends, because even if the sex is good and you get along great as a couple there is a chance that it will end and it will totally destroy the friendship. You will end up being the mortal enemies with a person you used to be good friends with. Trust me, it's not worth the risk. I've lost alot of male friends that way, and I regret it. This is not to say you shouldn't be friends with the person you are involved with. You should be, it just means don't get into something intimate with someone you are already friends with.

Tip #13:

Never give up on true love. Your Mr. or Mrs. Right is out there somewhere, you just may have to go searching for them, because there is very little chance that they will land mysteriously on your doorstep. Just be careful about how you go looking for them. There are too many dangerous things floating around that can hurt you, so be careful of what (or who) you do, and how you do it.

These things may not solve all the problems in your life, but they sure can make things alot easier when it comes to love, dating and sex in the 90's. Take it from the Queen of If I knew then, what I know now, so you don't become one of may subjects.

The Cat is Back

Ok, enough with the intro, let's get down to the business at hand. It's a new semester and what are you going to do about it? First off, I'd like to address a letter from a couple of issues back. The letter was stating a few things about the fact that all these folks responding negatively to Gordon Gekko work at CFLR. Well, here's something that I might get edited for, but, GEKKO WORKS THERE TOO!!!!!! Hey, it's not a crime to voice an opinion, no matter what side of the fence you are on. Of course, when I asked the folks at CFLR if this was true, they kinda expressed that you can say what you please as long as it isn't hate propaganda, and they didn't know that anyone named Gekko worked there. They're just a radio station y'know. I can live with that.

I think what Gekko is bordering on is merely old fashioned values, or "exclusion propaganda". It's not necessarily hate, it's not necessarily racism. I beg to argue, however, in the favour that his arguments are flawed in their design. There are too many ways to interpret these Limbaugh-esque "Family Values" that's leads to racism and hatred. At this point, I make the statement that people are just taking Rush too damned seriously. He's a bozo. He's a clown. He's a back-alley analyst and a Laissez-Faire capitalist whose ideals could lead to a strong nationalist sentiment under the red white and blue M.I.C.. This, of course, denies individual growth and progress of ideology, which, I say again, is what the United States was built on, originally.

We could write until we are blue in the fingers, but Gekko and I have things to do this semester. Arguably, in the end we are most correct only in our right to express ourselves. As long as there are two sides, as long as there is a struggle (we don't know for sure which is good and which is evil) we will have progress. As soon as one side wins, ideology will cease to change and lines between left and right will be erased as life becomes stagnate and the search for self-identity becomes a chapter in a book, instead of a lifelong quest.

Blah, blah, blah! So I was listening in on a conversation the other day in which I heard that Laurentian didn't want to book any real rock-n-roll bands for carny week this year because of the "troubles" with the crowd at 54-40 in September. How about that! We finally get a half assed show here and they say they don't want to do it again because too many people had a good time. Well, I think that the Skydiggers, the Waltons and the Lost Dakotas might all be swell fellas but they are kind of an insult to us. The Carny-week committee has slapped us all across the face and said "we don't trust that you can have a good time without breaking stuff." They think that a little crowd surfing is the root of all evil and lawsuits.

I think they just booked the bands that would get them the most payoff from the beer companies. These are the bands that had the $2000 fee that would get them into the corporate slime-fest known as COCA. These are the bands that don't distract us from the pursuit of beer and money. Good, talented bands for kinder, friendlier 90's. Well, I'll tell you what. The 90's aren't kind and friendly. We are saddled with the evils of political correctness and family values that threatened to destroy the world in the fifties, the time is now to get out there and mess some stuff up. I don't mean that you should roam the streets with a baseball bat. I do think that you should turn your amplifier up to ten, and not succumb to this "slacker" generation label that is meant to define us. This is a time when we should get some honest decent music here, not the tired muzak that the committee has planned for us. I have one thing to say to the "executive". If you want to be boring, do it on your own time, don't inflict your apathetic sickness on us. I have one thing to say to the student body, "don't be insulted, DO SOMETHING INTERESTING!!!!!" See ya at the Townhouse!!!

CORNER

Breaking Up

Sometimes I feel like crying and that I should be ashamed.
Maybe it is my own fault,
am I the one to be blamed?
I still care for you so much,
I don't know what to do.
Perhaps it was for the best,
but why do I feel so blue?
Even though I hardly knew you and you hardly knew me,
It is something I understand,
something that I see.
We should remain friends,
You told me that yourself.
Maybe it will work out someday,
but I may always be by myself.
We may never be together again
may never be reunited,
For as I see it now
we may always be devided.
If my heart now seems broken
Please do not be upset.
For there always is a bright new day
After every sunset.
If you should forget me
Or stop coming around,
We may never discover
if it was true love we found.
In hope of togetherness again-
all my love, S.

LES HOPITAUX ECONOMISENT 250 MILLIONS DE DOLLARS

Ministère de la Santé

Selon une étude parrainée par le ministère, les hôpitaux pourraient économiser 250 millions de dollars! Ruth Grier, ministre de la Santé, a fait bon accueil à un rapport qui pourrait aider les hôpitaux à économiser 250 millions de dollars, soit plus de 20 pour 100 des 1,1 milliards de dollars qui sont dépensés chaque année pour l'achat de fournitures.

L'étude sur la gestion de matériel des soins de santé en Ontario est une analyse de l'achat, de la distribution et de l'entreposage du matériel par les hôpitaux de l'Ontario. Les recommandations présentées pourraient permettre aux hôpitaux d'affecter les économies réalisées aux soins pour les patients.

Mme Grier a pris la parole aujourd'hui à l'assemblée annuelle de l'Association des hôpitaux de l'Ontario. "Cette étude un excellent exemple de la collaboration entre les hôpitaux et le Ministère afin de mieux gérer nos ressources", a-t-elle déclaré. "Une meilleure gestion est un élément essentiel à notre engagement à préserver notre système de soins de santé en Ontario."

L'étude a été financée grâce à un subvention du Fonds d'encouragement à l'innovation dans les hôpitaux accordée par le Bureau de développement économique dans le domaine de la santé qui relève du ministère de la Santé. Carecor Health Services Inc., centrale d'achat sans but lucratif pour 50 hôpitaux de la région de Toronto, et l'Association des hôpitaux de l'Ontario ont recueilli et analysé des données provenant de près de la moitié des 223 hôpitaux de l'Ontario.

Selon les résultats de l'étude, les hôpitaux ont tendance à considérer uniquement les prix nets au lieu de prendre en compte l'ensemble de la chaîne d'approvisionnement. Ils sont quelquefois en retard sur l'industrie en ce qui concerne les méthodes les plus récentes de gestion du matériel.

Les hôpitaux de la province, qui représentent l'un des plus grands organismes d'achat du monde, sont encouragés à profiter de leur puissance. Selon l'étude, les meilleures pratiques de gestion passent par l'augmentation du nombre de centrales d'achat le développement de l'automatisation, la livraison au moment adéquat, la simplification des procédures, et une meilleure formation du personnel.

L'étude souligne que les industries de la santé de l'Ontario qui fournissent du matériel aux hôpitaux profiteront également de la plus grande efficacité d'un système basé sur des achats groupés et des procédures d'achat simplifiées.

"Les hôpitaux veulent bénéficier des occasions présentées dans ce rapport. Nous examinons la meilleure façon d'intégrer les diverses composantes nécessaires pour en retirer le plus d'avantages possibles", a déclaré Dennis Timbrell, président de l'Association des hôpitaux de l'Ontario.

Remerciements à l'AEF

Blaine Labelle
Président du club de cricket

Il me fait un grand plaisir d'annoncer que le Club de cricket de l'Université Laurentienne a reçu le titre de club de l'Association des étudiantes et étudiants francophones. Dans une lettre du 9 décembre 1993, nous avons reçu du vice-président de l'AEF le droit de siéger comme membre non votant du Grand Conseil. En plus, nous avons aussi reçu le droit de recevoir des fonds de l'AEF pour nos activités sociales. Les membres du Cricket aimeraient remercier l'AEF pour nous avoir reconnu comme club officiel de l'Université Laurentienne. Nous apprécions la chance de partager l'aspect social du jeu de cricket ainsi que son héritage. Nous aimerions aussi remercier tout ceux qui ont participé au tirage 50/50 du mois de décembre. Le gagnant était Paul-Émile Legault, professeur d'Astronomie, ici à l'Université Laurentienne.

Les autobus de Sudbury 2

rédacteur français

C'est la nouvelle année 1994, mais les choses n'ont pas changé, tout spécialement "Sudbury Transit". Eh oui, nos chers autobus ne changent pas d'année en année! Mais que voulez-vous nous ne sommes que des étudiantes et des étudiants qui n'ont aucuns choix. Nous, étudiantes et étudiants, doivent prendre l'autobus pour aller à l'Université car prendre le taxi tout les jours ne figurent pas dans notre budget.

"Sudbury Transit" a les étudiantes et les étudiants dans la situation parfaite, car ce département sait très bien que sans eux les étudiantes et les étudiants seraient pris à prendre le taxi qui est beaucoup trop cher. Alors, au lieu de dépenser de l'argent à améliorer leur services aux étudiantes et étudiants, ils ne font rien.

De plus, j'ai été très déçu par le service que j'ai eu la semaine dernière. À deux reprises, la même journée, l'autobus n'a même pas arrêté à l'arrêt d'autobus. Je ne veux pas répéter ce que j'ai dit cette journée-là en marchant à l'Université.

Mais, ce qui me frustre le plus c'est que "Sudbury Transit" ont un département pour les plaintes, sauf que la personne qui entend les plaintes ne semblent jamais être là. Donc, il est très difficile de se plaindre. Alors, je me plains à travers du papier en espérant que quelques-uns de vous se plaignent.

Puis pour vous choquez encore plus, il semblerait que "Sudbury Transit" veut hausser le prix sans améliorer le service. Leurs priorités devraient être de servir les gens qui prennent l'autobus et n'ont les personnes qui travaillent pour "Sudbury Transit"!

Tous les Matins du Monde

Johanne Tremblay

pris du Pro Tem du 22 novembre 1993

"J'avais un maître... moi je joue mais lui, lui, il était la musique." - Marin Marais

Le génie de Tous les Matins du Monde, cet intimiste et splendide chef-d'oeuvre cinématographique réalisé en France en 1991 et gagnant de sept Césars (French Oscars), nous fait pénétrer dans le monde sacré de la musique du légendaire Sainte Colombe, le grand maître de la viole.

Raconté en une kyrielle de tableaux impressionnistes dont les couleurs, les sons et toute la gamme d'émotions et d'états d'âme demeurent à jamais gravés dans l'esprit de l'élève, le célèbre musicien et compositeur, Marin Marais, dont l'affection profonde et l'admiration pour son maître étaient sans bornes, le film se veut être un hommage à la France Baroque, à la musique et au son grave et mélancolique de la viole.

Les sensibilités antagonistes et bientôt soeurs du maître et de son élève serviront de motif à leur relation et c'est de cette rencontre, qui bouleversera sa vie et son oeuvre, que Marin Marais puisera tout son inspiration.

Le lustre poupeux et désopilant de l'élite française du XVII^e siècle contraste gravement avec la passion profonde et inspirée qu'entretient, et au coeur de laquelle se retire, Sainte Colombe pour la mystique de la musique. Il s'y consacre d'ailleurs corps et âme et ce, jusque dans la mort. Son oeuvre témoigne de la grandeur de son esprit et du mariage accompli entre son âme et la musique.

Le son de la viole, d'une puissance d'impression difficilement comparable est admirablement supporté par la narration (Gérard Dépardieu, Marin Marais), la photographie, le scénario irréprochable et la performance des acteurs dont la réputation est d'ailleurs déjà solidement établie, à une exception près: Guillaume Dépardieu (fils de), mais dont ce premier rôle au grand écran et le talent manifeste avec lequel il le soutient suggèrent un avenir des plus distingués.

Jean-Pierre Marielle est profond et grave et l'accomplissement de son interprétation rend justice à la grandeur et à la dignité du maître de musique.

Ceux qui eurent le plaisir de voir Cyrano de Bergerac se souviendront de la finesse, du jeu intense et sensible d'Anne Brochet (Roxanne dans Cyrano). Elle incarne ici la fille aînée de Sainte Colombe, une musicienne accomplie, amante, complice, et professeure de musique du jeune Marais. Carole Richert, incarnant la soeur cadette, est plus effacée mais non moins notable. Gérard Dépardieu dans le rôle de Marin Marais est quant à lui d'une présence juste et solide et toujours égal à lui-même.

Le film nous porte au son du sublime Tombeau des regrets composé par Sainte Colombe à la mort de sa femme, qu'il aimera et regrettera d'ailleurs sans répit, et de La rêveuse que Marin Marais composa pour son amante. La trame sonore de Jordi Savial est d'une beauté des plus touchantes, et son esprit anime les images et la poétique du récit.

Tous les Matins du Monde qu'il est possible de voir lors de ses venues périodiques dans les cinémas du répertoire Festival (auxquels je vous suggère fortement de vous abonner, si ce n'est déjà fait) est d'un pur ravissement pour les sens et les âmes sensibles à la musique et au mystérieux qui anime les artistes.

Poème

Pierre J. Perreault

poète

Je ne pense à rien de spécial

Je pense au futur

À mon futur, noir et sombre, sans espoir,

Je pense à mes progrès banals

Je pense à toutes mes faillites.

La vie n'est pas simple aujourd'hui,
Les étudiants sont forcés d'entrer en compétition entre amis, pour un futur...

Je Pense...

Je ne vauds rien au monde,

Je vais être une honte à ma famille

Pourtant, ils m'ont beaucoup aidé

Ils ont eu beaucoup de patience

Que c'est futile!

Je n'écris pas ces mots pour la pitié,
Je n'en ai pas besoin et je n'en veux pas
C'est pas juste la vie
Des milliers de jeunes se battent entre eux pour une simple vie.

Je pense à mes paroles, à mes pensées perdues

Je pense à mon futur perdu et inacceptable

Je pense au millier de jeunes au monde

J'ai de la peine pour eux et non pour moi.

Je pense à eux

Conditions dangereuses

Shaun Joseph

Il y a des choses qui ne clochent pas à la piscine de la Laurentienne. Je parle de quoi au juste? Eh bien, c'est très simple, il semblerait que le niveau d'expérience à la piscine est très bas. Les sauveteurs ont des rencontres mensuelles, malheureusement ceux-ci n'ont pas beaucoup d'expérience.

Plusieurs sauveteurs, avec des années d'expériences, se sont présentés au mois de septembre 1993 pour des postes comme sauveteurs et ils ne se sont pas faits engagés, malgré leurs expériences à d'autres piscines.

Quel est le critère pour devenir un sauveteur à la piscine? Il semblerait que les étudiantes et étudiants du secondaire ont une meilleure chance que des personnes qui ont été des sauveteurs pour des années et des années. Cette pratique pourrait être très dangereuse car s'il y avait un accident grave ces sauveteurs avec moins d'expériences n'auraient peut-être pas les habiletés pour bien agir.

Je n'essaie pas d'abaisser les sauveteurs à la piscine. Je suis inquiet au sujet de qualité et le niveau d'expérience des gens qui travaillent à la piscine! Les personnes qui ont les meilleures habiletés et les meilleures qualifications devraient être engagées, sinon la qualité du travail n'est pas la meilleure.

La première semaine du Nouvel An!

contributeur

C'est le nouvel an et j'ai déjà brisé mes résolutions pour 1994! Mais ce n'est pas surprenant car je les brise toujours! En fait cela apporte un bon point. Pourquoi fait-on des résolutions chaque année même si l'on sait que nous n'allons pas les garder? Je suppose que c'est une chose que l'on ne peut pas vraiment expliquer car l'on ne connaît pas la raison d'être de la chose comme telle. C'est un mystère qui n'a pas de solutions.

Mais je devrais revenir à mon sujet! Pendant la première semaine de janvier, tout les étudiantes et étudiants qui vont à l'université se disent toujours qu'ils travailleront plus fort au nouvel 'an. Mais normalement, en arrivant à l'université, ces étudiantes et étudiants ne veulent pas commencer leur travail car "c'est la première semaine, j'ai beaucoup de temps!"

Sauf que par la troisième semaine de janvier, ils réalisent que les dissertations et les présentations sont dues au début février. Et alors c'est la grande panique, ils se plaignent des devoirs pendant une semaine. Et enfin, la journée avant la date d'échéance, ils paniquent car ils n'ont pas fait de recherche et la bibliothèque est fermée. Ce qui veut dire qu'ils doivent écrire des histoires fantastiques, sachant très bien que le professeur dira que c'est de la merde!

Les professeurs et les professeurs sont comme les parents, ils savent que vous avez fait quelque chose de méchant. Et comme les parents, ils vous punissent autrement vous n'allez jamais apprendre votre leçon. Par contre, les professeurs et les professeurs ne vivent pas avec vous donc ils ne peuvent pas vous dire de faire vos devoirs chaque soir! Je suppose que c'est un inconvénient lorsque l'on arrive à l'université car la seule personne qui peut vous pousser c'est vous-même! Puis naturellement, vous préférez aller aux "partys" car c'est beaucoup plus intéressant que les devoirs.

Mais je reviens au sujet duquel je voulais parlé qui est maintenant tellement abstrait que je ne sais plus vraiment ce que c'est. Ce n'est pas grave car éventuellement mon cerveau doué d'une mémoire extraordinairement courte retrouvera le but de cet article. Cela ne veut pas dire que l'article fera du sens!

Je gages que je vous est complètement perdu! Eh bien, pour ma part, j'étais perdu après le deuxième paragraphe, mais je ne voulais pas vous dire car vous n'auriez pas lu le tout jusqu'à ce point.

Je pense que je vous est emmerdé assez pour cette semaine, alors à la prochaine mes petits amis et mes petites amies! Adios, Salut, Chow, Dude, Tsüss!!!

Vees 5
Ryerson 3

Steve Martinovich
Sports Editor

The first game of the new year for the hockey Vees saw them meet up with their divisional rivals, the last place Ryerson Rams at Sudbury Arena on January 4. For most of the game, it wasn't a contest as the Vees dominated the Rams, with the final result a 5-3 victory.

The Vees had a good first period, after killing 4 minutes of penalties. Right winger Pat Armitage blasted a shot in the top left corner, beating the Rams goalie handily. That goal was followed by another from Armitage with one more by Rob Papineau. The Rams simply could not get anything going as they continually dumped the puck into Vees territory and did not follow up. The Vees took advantage of this and physically dominated the Rams.

The second period wasn't as kind, as the Vees seemed to sit back and try and nurse their lead. Ryerson gained the momentum, and after killing a two man deficiency came back to score two goals. Credit has to be given to Marshall Starkman, goalie for the Rams, who continually kept the Rams in the game, but considering that the Vees had nearly twice as many shots on goal as the Rams, he couldn't do it for long. Richardson and Caruso from the Rams, who are 2nd and 3rd respectively in the OUAA scoring race couldn't get anything really going after the two goals from the Rams.

The Vees put it away in the third as Lio Spagnuolo scored a power play goal that turned out to be the game winner. Murray Margarit scored the last Vees goal as Ryerson managed only one more goal. Of the game Coach Stu Duncan said, "I was happy with the first and third period and disappointed in the second". Duncan also stated that a lack of discipline was responsible for the lackluster second period, but was happy that the team could get back on its feet to take back the game.

The win helps entrench the Vees in first in their division, giving them a four point cushion over the York Yeomen. The last time the Vees met the Rams, on December 3rd, it ended up as a 8-2 romp for the Vees. Their next game is against the Far West Division cellar dwelling Windsor Lancers in Windsor on January 15.

Lady Vees Hitting The Hardwood

by Martin Benson
Contributor

After travelling to the United States and throughout Canada during the pre-season, the Lady Vee's Basketball Team is ready for the regular season. They take their Number 2 National ranking into Ryerson and York this weekend. The team is in good humour and very confident. They've been practising hard, and are repeating Coach Ennis' famous successful drills.

The two bright looking rookies, Joy McNichol and Katie Malone, are blending in well with the veterans. They have impressed everyone who have seen them play and are as an exciting duo as the Lady Vee's have had in some years.

Come and cheer them on, on January 21 for the home opener as they tip it up against their perennial rivals from the University of Toronto. On Saturday, the 22nd, another great match up is scheduled at the Ben Avery Gym as our Lady Vee's host the competitive Queen's Golden Gaels. Don't miss a National battle as our Number 2 Lady Vee's meet Number 3 U of T, Friday, January 21, 6:15 pm at the Ben Avery Gym!

Some of his interests include sports, music, and the outdoors. As a power hitter on the team, he feels that this year's team is young, but powerful.

Andrew's personal goal for the season is to improve his passing. A couple of things that satisfy him the most during a game are digging a hard hit ball and making a clean "kill".

Catch Andrew and the rest of his teammates in action on Friday, January 14 against Queen's at 7:00pm and again on 15th at 1:00pm.

Next week's issue will feature a rookie who keeps the team laughing with all of his crazy antics

Vees 8
Ryerson 2

The Voyageurs continued on their division leading pace as they met the Ryerson Rams on December 3. The visiting Vees ended up crushing the sub-par Rams by a score of 8-2. The Vees were led by right wingers J.D. Eaton and Jon Stos, who both scored two goals each. Lio Spagnuolo, Dean Pella, Darren Dougan and Murray Margarit added the other goals.

The Rams have had problems all season. Before coming into the match with our Vees, they had a meager 2-8-2 record, allowing 80 goals in 12 games. Only RMC and Queen's have worse records. The win moved Laurentian into a tie for fifth spot overall in the OUAA, along with McGill.

1 tbsp. (15 mL) dried parsley
1/2 tsp. (2 mL) cooking onion, chopped
1 tbsp. (15 mL) lemon juice
1/2 cup (125 mL) milk
a few drops Worcestershire sauce
2 eggs
1/4 tsp. (1 mL) pepper

Remove cover for last 10 minutes, to evaporate moisture.

Lazy Salmon

Don't start Without:

large bowl
can opener measuring cup
measuring spoons knife
casserole dish with lid large spoon

Helpful Hints:

- Use soft dry bread crumbs or crackers depending on what you happen to have on hand.
- If using crackers, about six of them will make your salmon fairly firm. If you find that after adding the liquid ingredients it's too watery, simply add more crackers. Try different kinds of crackers.
- Lemon juice straight from the natural container (the yellow one, with the rind) can be used here, or the bottled variety can be substituted.

Serving Ideas:

- Serve with rice or mashed potatoes
- If using rice, you can combine with left-overs.
- Left-overs can be frozen and reheated at 350°F (180°C) for about 20 minutes.

Laurentian then met up with Seneca and dropped them 5-2.

Ed D'Armon Tournament

The men's basketball team travelled to Ryerson during the holidays to play in the Ed D'Armon Tournament. Unfortunately the team did not fare well as they dropped 2 out of 3 games. Their first game consisted of a 91-64 loss to Simon Fraser. The second game saw the Vees edged out by Calgary 103-101. The final game saw Laurentian put one in the win column with a 87-80 win over Allegheny. The men's team next see's action against Ryerson on Friday, January 14 at 8:00pm here at Laurentian.

Cross Country

The cross country team made a trip to the Northern Races and did impressively. Among the stars was Bernard Lacourciere, who because of impressive showings, made the national team. He came in 9th in the 20KM Skate and 5th in the 71/2KM Classic.

Western Open Success for Track Vees

The Vees traveled to Western on December 4 to participate in the Western Open, their first track meet of their season. The Vees had strong personal performances with several personal bests. Highlights for the Vees were Jason Leach's three personal bests in the 1000m, the 1500m, and the 4X400m. Christina Melaney also had a strong personal performance placing 3rd in the shot put, with a throw of 11m and 99cm, just barely missing the CIAU qualifying standard by 1cm.

Other notables were Mark Proulx's 3rd place finish in the 1500m, Rick Dagenais' 3rd place finish in the 60m hurdles, Michael Okell's 3rd place finish in the long jump, Ian Janssen's 3rd place finish in the triple jump, and the 4X400 team, consisting of Rick Dagenais, Jason Leach, Ray Gingras and Daniel Leduc, which placed second.

Cross-Country Ski Challenge

by Gregory Cawsey
Contributor

As convenor of cross-country ski challenge '94 I would like to introduce you to the event and how you can get involved

On Friday Feb. 4th skiers will be hitting the 1 km course trying to complete as many laps as possible in effort to raise money for Laurentian Hospital. To take up the 2nd challenge, sign up in the Physical Education Services office to pick up your sponsor sheet package. Rentals are available at the outdoor centre and there are prizes from Q92 to Skiers who do the most laps and raise the most money.

So, if being active in the great outdoors to raise money for charity appeals to you, then get involved. Now maybe you can't ski, you think X-country is boring, or maybe like me you can't be there on the 4th. No problem, sponsor a brave soul willing to freeze their butt off for charity.

Either way Laurentian, the challenge had been given, get involved. Remember MacLagan's is watching.

A benefit volleyball game was held December 8 at the Ben Avery Gym which featured the Vees facing off against the Cambrian squad. Admission was free, but spectators were asked to bring an unwrapped toy or non-perishable food item to support the LU Food Bank or Sudbury's hospitalized children.

After a fast start by Cambrian, the Voyageurs came from two games down to win three straight and the match. The Vees were lead by rookie power hitter Andrew Elkin who had an excellent overall match and who also took the game MVP honors. Captain Paul Rainville also had 16 kills and 6 aces. The scores of the games were 14-16, 14-16, 15-7, 15-12, 15-15.

LAURENTIAN CAMPUS MINISTRY

L.C.M. welcomes you to a series of three presentations called "The Sharing of a Spiritual Journey". L.C.M. wishes to bring awareness and visibility of Spiritual Life on Campus. By this activity "The Sharing of a Spiritual Journey" we wish to provide an opportunity to hear faculty and staff who have accepted the invitation to share their Spiritual Journey. By doing so, they provide us with opportunity to become more aware of our own spiritual journey. To hear someone who took time to reflect upon their journey helps us to recognize events in our own journey that makes us grow as a more intelligent, responsible and spiritual person. They will help us find words to describe our spiritual experiences.
